PREFACE.

SHAKSPEARE has his Concordance; lesser poets, such as Tennyson and Cowper, have theirs—why not BURNS, the National Poet of Scotland? It may be said that Burns is not a voluminous writer; yet there are no fewer than six hundred distinct pieces in his “Poems and Songs;”

and the difficulty of verifying a quotation, finding a phrase, a happy expression, or the exact words of a passage, is further augmented by the hopeless character of the Index to any “Edition” that may be possessed. But, apart from the question of utility, a genius like Burns—wielding with unrivalled power what Ruskin characterises as “the sweetest, richest, subtlest, most musical of all the living dialects of Europe”—is a writer whose every word is deserving of study.

This Concordance claims to be not only a complete Verbal but also a complete Phrase Concordance*—the first instance in which this combination has been attempted. In view of the fact that no poet, except Shakspeare, is more quotable than Burns, the aim has been to give every quotation in sufficient fulness to serve the purpose of the literary man, the public speaker, or the conversationalist. This fulness of the quotations also makes it easy to determine from the context the various shades of meaning in which any word may be used. The Text adopted is that of the First Editions, edited by the Poet himself. Alterations and additions made by the Poet's own hand are embodied in the Work, and explained in an Appendix to which references are given. It has been too much the practice of Editors to improve upon Burns. They have, evidently, been unable to rid themselves of the idea that, although Burns was a genius, he was also a ploughman, and therefore deficient in critical perception. The “Titles” and “First Lines” of the Poems and Songs are given in as extended a form as the exigences of space would permit. They are those with which the Poet headed his pieces; in a few instances only, such popular titles as “My Nannie's Awa,” “Wandering Willie,” “Tam Glen,” etc., have been preferred. The Glossary will be useful to those Scotsmen whose acquaintance with their native tongue has become vague and shadowy, as well as to those who are ignorant of the Scottish language; and, as incorporated, will save some trouble.

This Concordance—done in intervals of other duties during several years past—has been a growing pleasure; that it may add another stone to the cairn which many successive hands have reared in love of ROBERT BURNS is the humble ambition of

THE EDITOR.

* The Concordance contains over 11,400 words, and 52,000 quotations.

EXPLANATIONS AND ABBREVIATIONS.

A complete Index, arranged in Alphabetic order, of all the "Titles" and "First Lines" used in the Concordance, is appended to the Work. "Titles" and "First Lines" not used in the Concordance are also given along with the above; where these occur the lines are slightly indented.

An English numeral after a "Title" or "First Line" indicates the verse, stanza, or division of the poem or song in which the quotation occurs.

Brackets [ ] enclose any explanatory word or words of the Editor. Words within parentheses ( ) are the Poet's own.

A quotation beginning without a capital letter means that it does not begin with the first word of the line, but shows where the quotation has been cut out. The pointing of the Poet has been preserved at the end of every quotation; and the capitals which occur in the Poet's text retained.

† indicates that the words which stand before it are a first line or part of a first line.

Add. . . . . .	Address.	Lus . . . . .	Lines.

The Death of Maillie.

Attested. The oft-attested Powers above;

The Lament. 3.

Attire. My Muse, tho' hamely in attire,

May touch the heart.

Ep. to J. L—k, Ap. 1st. 13.

Ye shall gang in gay attire,

S. My Collier Laddie.

Attir'd. Attir'd as minstrels wont to be.

A Vision.

Attour [over, besides]. Bye attour, my Gutcher has

A hich house and a laigh ane;

S. Gat ye me?

Attribute. Heaven's attribute distinguish'd—to hestow!

Ep. to R. Graham. 5.

Attune. But peace attune thy gentle soul to rest,

To Miss Graham.

Atweel [well] in truth!

Are they a' Johnny's? Eh! atweel no:

S. Gudene to you Kinner?

Atween [between]. Or how the collieshangle works

Atween the Russians and the Turks;

Kind Sir, I've read?

Ha'e had a bitter black out-cast

Atween themself.

The Twa Herds. 2.

Auchenbay, An' Auchenbay, I wish him joy;

Auld comrade dear?

Aught. Could aught of song declare my pains,

S. Could aught of song?

'Tis sweeter for thee despairing,

Than aught in the world beside,

Jessy, S. Here's a health!

We're sayin or takin aught amiss;

Kind Sir, I've read?

Even they maun dare an effort mair,

Than aught they ever gave us,

The deil he cou'dna skaith thee,

Or aught that wad belang thee!

S. O saw ye bonie Lesley?

I, careless, quit aught else below,

But spare me, spare me Lucy dear.

S. O wat ye wha's in yon?

Can thy keen inspection trace

Aught of Humanity's sweet melting grace?

Ode to Mem. of Mrs. —.

From aught that's good exempt.

On Duke of Queensberry.

Nor more may aught my steps divide,

From that dear stream which flows to Clyde.

S. Slow spreads the gloom?

Or nature aught of pleasure give;

S. The day returns?

That few for aught but folly lusted;

The Hermit.

Aught [eight]. In aught hours gaun, A Gaid New-year!

11.

Aught [belong]. Whase aught these Chiels maks a' this hustle here?

Scots Prologue.

Aughteen [eighteen]. A prisoner aughteen year awa,

S. Among the trees?

Augment. May heaven augment your blessings,

A Dream. 1.

August. When August winds the heather wave,

Tam Samson's El. 13.

Auld [Rev. Mr.].

Daddy Auld, Daddy Auld, there's a tod in the fauld,

The Kirk's Alarm. 8.

But chiefly thou, apostle A—d,

We trust in thee,

The Twa Herds. 10.

I did na suffer ha'f sae much

Fræ Daddie Auld.

What ails ye now?

Auld [old]. Ye've gien auld Britain peace,

A Dream. 6.

Hae, there's a ripp to thy auld baggie:

A Gaid New-Year?

An' thy auld hide as white's a daisie,

Id. 2.

But thy auld tail thou wad hae whisket,

Id. 12.

my auld, trusty Servan',

Id. 17.

An' thy auld days may end in starvin',

Id.

Now blooms the lily by the bank, Lament of Mary of Scots.

And the next flowers that deck the spring,

Bloom on my peaceful grave. . . . Id.

That blooms sae far frae haunt o' man;

S. O bonie was you rosy 1

The flower stem shall bloom like thy sweet Seraph form,

On Death of fair Child

And blooms a rose in Heaven. . . . On Poet's Daughter.

There's ne'er a flower that blooms in May,

That's half sae welcome's thou art. . . . On W. Stewart.

There's not a flower that blooms in May,

That's half so fair as thou art. [re.] . . . S. Polly Stewart.

Sweet banks! ye bloom by Mary's side;

S. Slow spreads the gloom 1

While Fragrance blooms an' Beauty charms!

The Author's Cry and Prayer. P.

Where spreading hawthorns gaily bloom!

For she's the pink o' womankind, and blooms without a peer;

The simmer lillies [may] bloom in snaw, . . . S. To daunt me

How can ye bloom sae fresh and fair;

S. Ye banks and bras 1

Young Peggy blooms our bonniest lass, . . . S. Young Peggy 1

Blomed. And bonie bloom'd our roses; S. Awa, wulgis, awa.

the flower which bloomed sweetest in Coila's green vale,

Lament on leaving Nat. Land.

How sweetly bloom'd the gay, green birk,

S. Ye banks, and bras, and streams 1

Blooming, -in. And down among the blooming heather,

S. As I came d'er 1

Ye wander thro' the blooming heather;

S. Bravo lads on Yar, friends 1

Desart ilka blooming shore; . . . S. Frac the friends 1

With green spreading bushes, and flow'rs blooming fair;

S. How pleasant the banks 1

Now Nature hangs her mantle green

On every blooming tree, . . . Lament of Mary of Scots

Among the blooming heather: . . . S. Now westlin winds 1
She's bonie, blooming, straight, and tall;

S. O this is no my ain 1

And welcome in the blooming year! S. O wat ye wha's in 1

The youthful blooming Nelly lay, S. On a bank of flowers 1

Blooming in the sunny ray; . . . S. Sensibility 1

And blooming Keith's engaged with Gray;) Sketch. New-Yr's Day.

The heather was blooming, the meadows were mawn,

S. The heather was blooming 1

Blooming on thy early May, . . . To Miss C.

Therefore while ye're blooming Katie,

Listen to a loving swain; . . . Will ye go and marry 1

As blooming spring unbends the brow

Of surly, savage winter. . . . S. Young Peggy 1

Bonie and bloomin, and straight was its make;

Blossom. bonie blossoms a', Ye royal Lasses dainty, . . . A Dream. 14.

O spare the dear blossom, ye orient breezes,

S. How pleasant the banks 1

My blossom sweet did blow, . . . S. Luckless Fortune.

But luckless fortune's northern storms

Laid a' my blossoms low, [re.] . . . Id.

Here, in this hand, does mankind stand,

And there, is Beauty's blossom! . . . Nature's Law.

With purple blossoms to the spring; . . . S. O were my love 1

Ere the spoiler had nipt thee in blossom,

On Death of fav. Child

I saw fair freedom's blossoms richly blow;

On Death of Sir J. Blair

Virtue's blossoms there shall blow,

And fear no withering blast; . . . Sad thy tale 1

And hey for the blossoms 'twill bring;

The Election Ballads. III.

But he whose blossom buds in guilt

Shall to the ground be cast, . . . The 1st Psalm.

The blossom of our gentry! . . . To Mr. M'Adam

Not the bee upon the blossom,

In the pride of sunny noon; . . . S. Turn again, thou fair 1

Sweet as yon hawthorn's blossom, . . . S. When wild War's 1

How rich the hawthorn's blossom;

S. Ye banks, and bras, and streams 1

And bless the dear parental name,

With many a filial blossom. . . . S. Young Peggy 1

Blossom, to.

And now she [Virtue] sees wi' pride, man,

How well it buds and blossoms there, The Tree of Liberty.

Blossom'd.

And the langer it blossom'd, the sweeter it grew;

Her breath is like the fragrant breeze

That gently stirs the blossom'd bean, S. On Cessnock banks 1

From the white blossom'd sloe my dear Chloe requested

A sprig her fair breast to adorn; . . . Sp. extem. to yug Lady.

Blot. A Scot still, but blot still,

I knew no higher praise. . . . The Ans. to the Guidwife.

Blot, to. And never envy blot their name!

Wha the de'il ever thinks o' the road he has past.

Some hooks are lies frae end to end, S. Contented wi' little †

Ev'n when the wished end's deny'd,

Yet while the busy means are ply'd,

They bring their own reward: Despondency, an Ode. 2.

nae other end Than just a kind memento;

Ep. to Young Friend. 1.

For care and trouble set your thought,

Ev'n when your end's attained; ib. 2.

For still th' important end of life,

They [wha fa'] equally may answer: ib. 4.

With honest pride, I scorn each selfish end,

The Cotter's Sat. Night.

This night his weekly toil is at an end, ib. 2.

This, all its source and end to draw,

That to adore. [V.A.4] The Vision.

The gallant Sir Robert fought hard to the end;

The Whistle. 10.

They raise a din, that, in the end,

Is like to breed a rupture O' wrath The Holy Fair, 18.

End, &c.

Wha kens, before his life may end,

What his share may be o' care, man? A Bottle and Friend.

An' th' auld days may be in starvin',

A Guid New-year † 17.

Admir'd and prais'd—and there the homage ends:

 My coggie is a haly pool,
 That heals the wounds o' care and dool; S. Gane is the day†
 Who heals life's various stounds, On Birth of Posth. Child.
 And heal her cruel wounds. 1b.
 And nocht can heal my bosom's smart, S. Sae far awa.
 Dread Omnipotence, alone,
 Can heal the wound He gae; Sad thy tale,†
 Tho' despair had wrung its core,
 That would heal its anguish. S. Thine am I†
Healing.
 Peerest to meditate the healing leap: Add. sp. by Fontenelle.
Healsome v. Halesome.
Health.
 May Health and Peace, with mutual rays,
 Shine on the ev'ning o' his days; A Ded. to G. H., 14.
 Long life, my Lord, and health be yours, Add. of Beelzebub.
 Now health forsakes that angel face, Fragment.
 But by that health, I've got a share o't,
Friend of the poet,† P.S.
 Here's a health to ane I lo'e dear, S. Here's a health to ane†
 Here's a health to them that's awa,
